resources, liaison to accreditation and a checklist based on evidence based science*

Oyster Bay, New York, May 27, 2020 - The Infection Prevention Strategy (TIPS), the not-for-profit global platform dedicated to advancing innovations, ideas and processes that make a difference in global health, is pleased to announce COVID-19 Guidance and Support Services.

TIPS is currently helping organizations and businesses around the world return to work. This new program now extends the accessibility to the USA, Canada, India, Australia and Europe. TIPS is offering assistance through a detailed "Guidance Report" outlining a return to work program, resources and a checklist that is based on evidence-based science, supported by regulatory guidelines and assisted by our world leading partners and experts. TIPS also lists verified innovations and protocols that will minimize risk.

This program is available to all business owners and facility types. From education to retail, TIPS can help you outline the steps required to open and maintain operations. TIPS, as an altruistic independent global health authority, will provide much needed context, guidance and resources to ensure healthy facility operations for all stakeholders.

The TIPS Guidance and Support program will provide a facility risk assessment that includes a review of facility waterborne pathogen risks, including legionella, air flow and decontamination, cleaning and disinfection products, innovations, distancing and behavioural protocols. TIPS will also provide direct introductions to accreditation bodies and a "next steps" checklist.
